

I would like to see the new rules be passed. This would allow the FCC to be able to restrict ownership with consideration of the explosion in news sources such as the internet. And the explosion of courts trying to "make law" I'm making this public comment especially because I was recently contacted and "informed" that move on.org was in opposition to these new rules. They say they are interested in government "fairness", I only see their interest in government "control" Thanks..Dave Beck